

Snead Juror Found to Be Non-Citizen

Counsel for Defendant Calls Court's Attention to One Man Who Is Resident of County—Fact Overlooked Until Today—Court Rules Trial Proceed, but Defense Notes Exception.

A surprise was sprung this morning in the trial of William M. Snead, charged with grand larceny in the corporation court, when the session resumed.

Counsel for the defense stated to the court that his attention had been called to the fact that Maline L. Brown, one of the jurors sitting in the Snead case, is not a citizen of Danville, but a resident of Pittsylvania county, and hence not qualified to sit as a juror in the city corporation court. There was momentary dismay over this disclosure with the prospect of the hard-fought case being dropped, and a new jury called and the necessity of summoning a new list of the bringing back of eleven witnesses from North Carolina who only yesterday were given their releases.

Immediately after this fact was announced to the court both counsel in the case, as well as the defendant, adjourned to the judge's private office where the law was consulted. This private session lasted until after 11 o'clock, at which time it is understood Judge Withers asked counsel for the defense for grounds why the defendant could not have a fair trial with Brown sitting in the jury box. These grounds, it is further understood, have not been presented thus far, and counsel for the defense maintained its stand on the technicality that the juror in question was not qualified. Finally decision was made to continue the case with Brown on the jury, and for the defense not to except an exception with a view of obtaining a writ of error from the Supreme Court to which the case will be taken in the event of conviction.

Just how the question of Brown's disqualification failed to become apparent until today is not known, but it seems that both the defense and the state overlooked the fact that the juror, who is quite well-known in town, while working here daily, actually lives outside the corporate limits.

It is understood that there is a precedent in the situation, this being several years ago, when Judge Aiken was on the bench. A juror claimed exemption from service in misdemeanor case. It is understood, by saying that he did not live in the city. Judge Aiken, it was recalled today, first asked him if the juror was a citizen of the State, and if he had good sense. An affirmative answer was given to both questions and Judge Aiken told the juror to sit in the case and it was tried, the verdict standing.

A considerable portion of the morning was lost by this development, and with the defense just beginning at about 11:15, it seemed unlikely that the case would be completed before late this evening.

Another Republican Promise Unfiled

Joint Committee in Departmental Reorganization Has Done Nothing Yet—Pledged a Saving of $200,000 Annually.

By GEORGE H. MANNING.
(Washington Correspondent of The Danville Bee.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21.—Created fifteen months ago, with long Republican promises that it would effect a complete reorganization of the government departments and save about $200,000 annually, the Joint Committee on Departmental Reorganization has done nothing.

In all that time it has held but three short meetings and has nothing to show for the expense it has incurred nor to fulfill the claims made for it by President Harding, and the republicans.

About the only promise it has served has been to furnish a $7,500 a year job for Walter L. Brown of Ohio, personal friend of the President's, and a federal employee, and save between $10,000 and $20,000 annually.

The Republican Congress had just come in, was anxious to follow President Harding's every wish, and willing to do anything that seemed to be in the way of reduced government expenses. Congress passed the resolution created,

To Try Officer I. H. Harris For Assault Monday

Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock has been set for the trial of Police Officer Ira H. Harris charged with assaulting London Campbell, who will also be tried for being drunk and disorderly. The hearing is the result of an affair which occurred last night, in which the officer is said to have beaten up his prisoner while carrying him for being drunk and disorderly. The accounts of the affair as told by the officer, Campbell and other witnesses are very conflicting. When Campbell was brought into the police station his face was bruised and bleeding and his clothes torn. For a time much excitement prevailed around the courthouse. The hearing Monday afternoon will probably clear up the whole matter.

More feeling was aroused in the office of Chief of Police Bell, where it is alleged that Officer Harris kicked his prisoner.

Officer Harris' account of the arrest and subsequent trouble, detailed to a reporter of this paper last night, follows:

"I was asked to get London Campbell to move from Wilson's store at the corner of Henry and Claiborne streets in North Danville. I approached Campbell and asked him to move off. He was abusive to me, cursing me in the most sort of language. I then placed him under arrest and he struck me several times. I then hit him lightly with my black-jack several times. I did not hit him hard. Campbell was so hard to manage that I requested Lindsey Fitzgerald, passing in the street, to take myself and prisoner to the court house. When we were passing over the bridge Campbell again hit me and I hit him several times with my stick. He also tore his clothes. I did not strike him or kick him after we reached the court house."

During the tussle on the bridge Mr. Fitzgerald turned round to see what was happening in the rear of his car, and the machine ran into a support of the bridge. Little damage was done to the car.

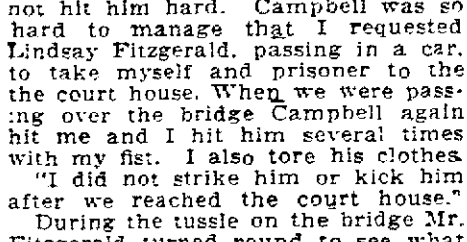

It is understood that Campbell denies that he hit the officer or gave him any cause to hit him with his black-jack.

Another account of the affair has it that Officer Harris kicked Campbell three times while in Chief Bell's office, and that the officer gave him any cause to hit him with his black-jack.

An eye-witness, Hugh D. Fitzgerald, is quoted as follows: "I saw an officer bringing in a prisoner at the courthouse steps. I did not know the prisoner, either the officer or the prisoner. The prisoner looked like he was beat up and I followed the two into the court house to see what would take place. While Campbell was standing and having given no cause, whatever, the officer kicked him hard on the leg. As Campbell was seating himself a moment later, the officer again kicked him twice on the leg. The officer then delivered with force. Chief Bell saw this happen as did a number of others."

Chief Bell was asked whether Officer Harris had kicked Campbell and he replied that he had been in the room all the while and that he most certainly had not; that there had been no trouble of any kind in his office.

When Two Dams Broke

Damage done to houses and to the Boston & Maine Railroad at Williamansett, Mass., when two dams broke is estimated at $1,000,000. The dam of Langwald Pond burst. When the water swept into Robert's Pond below, that dam collapsed. The overturned auto shows the force of the water.

Fight to Finish In Rail Strike

Speculation Now Turns to What Government Will Do To Keep Up Transportation.

(By The Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 21.—The strike of railway shippers today bore increasing external appearance of a finish fight between union men and the rail heads. Speculation has turned to what might be the next step by the federal government to keep up transportation.

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—President Harding was advised today by Chairman Cummins and Senators Watson and Kellogg, of the Interstate Commerce Committee of unavailing efforts made by them in conference with several leading railroad executives last night to obtain a basis for a settlement of the railroad strike. The senators declined to discuss their report prior to presentation to the President. On leaving they merely made a report, also that future conference "probably" would be held.

U. S. Asked To Give Poland Six Warships

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Uncle Sam is asked to give Poland a navy, under terms of a bill introduced by Senator France, Republican of Maryland.

The bill authorized the president, if he shall deem it consistent with the public welfare and the terms of the treaty obligations of the United States to donate to Poland six of such ships as the president may determine to be of the greatest value to the allies with Great Britain, France, and Japan, will no longer be needed by the United States and are listed to be scrapped.

Six cruisers are preferable, the Maryland senator said.

Donation of the ships, France explained, would be an expression on the part of the United States of "warm friendship and affection for the people of Poland, who have recently, after many years of oppression, secured the blessings of liberty and self government."

While the procedure would be unusual, it was explained the gift of six cruisers would in no way tend to "make Poland a military power."

"Why not, then," France asked, "give Poland six ships for which we have no use? It would save Poland millions of dollars, for we do not give her ships, she will be forced to build a navy of her own, and it would be much cheaper for America than scrapping the vessels."

Poland, hemmed in by strong nations, but with an outlet to the sea, is without a navy to protect her national safety," France continued.

"It would be an exceptionally generous and grateful act for the United States to show her faith in Poland's future by donating six cruisers."

The bill is in the hands of the Senate naval affairs committee for action.

Y. M. B. C. Picnic At Blair's Store

The Young Men's Business Club picnic is being held today at Blair's store about six miles from Danville, beyond the town of Lexington. The picnic started this morning at 9 o'clock and it was expected that early this afternoon there would be 300 members of the club of hand. Dinner, composed of a broiled steak and other meats, was served at 2 o'clock. Thirty-five chickens were slaughtered for the feast yesterday and a quantity of real also secured for the stew which was in process early this morning.

After dinner there will be six races for which prizes have been offered by local merchants. There will also be a baseball game and swimming in a pool which is not far from the scene of the activity.

Both of the candidates in the local primary campaign are the guests of the club and both Messrs Talbot and Marshall will be on the grounds during the day.

The excursionists expect to return to the city by 5 o'clock tonight.

Work Is Started On New Building

John Pettibone Co. Inc. of Lynchburg, recently awarded the contract for the building of the new floor finishing plant for the Dan River Mills, have begun ground on the structure. The work has been started building the base which will be used in pouring the concrete. Sheds for material and a small office also have been built and there are increasing signs of industry just beyond the mill, or just beyond the next houses, what is known as "Riverdale Drive." The new building is to be concrete, and to cost about half a million dollars, and is to be ready by the end of the current year.

RETURN FROM RICHMOND

A party of Danville people including George Davis, Misses Ruth Garrett and Beatrice Williams, and Mrs. James R. Williams, have returned from a pleasant stay of ten days in Richmond. Miss Williams, Walter Barker and Miss Myrtle Williams, the party made the trip through the country in an automobile. On returning they experienced much difficulty owing to heavy rains.

State Power Massed Behind Cavalrymen On Way to Mines Being Reopened to Prevent Disorder.

(By The Associated Press.)

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 21.—Pennsylvania cavalrymen and machine gunners are moving into Cambria, Washington, Somerset and other counties in southwestern Pennsylvania today to prevent disorders when the bituminous mines are reopened. The whole power of the state government is being massed behind them.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Joseph Caputo, 10, saved the life of his father, Anthony Caputo, Montclair, N. J., yesterday afternoon when the father was buried by the caving-in of a sewer embankment in Cloverhill Place, Montclair.

Caputo was caught by sliding sand and covered up to his head. The boy jumped into the trench and, digging furiously, kept the sand from smothering his father as it piled against his mouth and nose. The boy's cries attracted passersby and police were summoned. Caputo remained conscious until he was dug out. Then he collapsed. He was taken to Mount Carmel Hospital, suffering from shock and three broken ribs.

Several More Cases of Typhoid Reported

Several additional cases of typhoid fever have been reported at the city health office, bringing the total number reported this year or during the dangerous summer period to seven. In addition to these new reports, cases there are several others. Dr. R. W. Garnett, city health officer, says, they are being watched as suspects. Those all appear to be suffering from a milder form of the disease than that noted during last year's disastrous epidemic. Dr. Garnett reports that there is no common source of infection to be found.

Dr. Garnett today reiterated the warning that persons being treated with typhoid vaccine as a general protective measure.

Valuable Dyes May Come To U. S.

Effect of Strike Being Felt Here

Ocean Wave Will Roll Once More

The "ocean wave" amusement device at Green street park, which has been carefully put out of commission during the past several days, is to be removed to another part of the park and reopened for the children's enjoyment. Park Keeper E. G. McCain hopes to have this work done today. Several days ago heavy iron stakes were driven into the ground and at such an angle that the device could not be used. This was done by the city engineer, it is understood, following a conference with councilmen, who felt it best to suspend use of the device during the illness of an aged resident whose home looks on to the park, and who has been rendered nervous during illness by the shrill, enthusiastic shrieks of the children. While the council in formal action referred the Green street park matter back to the mayor for disposition, after the meeting adjourned there was an informal meeting and it was decided to close the ocean wave for the time being. The city engineer's force has been so busy that it could not remove the amusement device to another part of the park, but the park keeper hopes to be able to locate a spot where there will be no objection to it, and proposes to locate a new site and move the piece today.

A good many of the children who have been enjoying the ride have not understood why it was put out of commission and have been sitting away from the park. News that it will be reopened in another part will probably be welcomed by these youngsters.

All of the other amusement devices are now available for service.

Disturbance Case Results In Fines

A disturbance, in which J. T. Collins was charged with assaulting Gilbert Gauley, and the latter charged with creating the disorder, was aired in the Police court this morning. Collins was fined $10 and costs for the assault on Gauley, and the latter drew a $5 and costs fine on his warrant.

The fight took place at Collins' house on Gold street. Gauley came there without any provocation whatever. Collins entered the room and began to pound him on the head with a club, similar to the club carried by a policeman. He denied being drunk at the time, but a question directed at him, he admitted he had taken a drink. He also denied cursing Collins in the manner charged.

Collins story said a clearer idea of what took place. He says that some time ago he was fined for maintaining a disorderly house, of which he did not think he was responsible, because the disorders were created by the Gauley family, who sub-rented from him. He stated that the police told him to keep the house orderly and that he thought he was doing his duty last night in taking the action he did to quell a quarrel in the house. He said Gauley was cursing and abusing his brother because he would not go with him to the country and help him bring in a broken down auto. He says he went into the room and asked that the house be kept quiet and that Gauley cursed him and put his hand into his pocket as if to bring out some sort of weapon and it was then that he used the club.

The Gauleys appeared in court. His shirt was covered in blood which came from the wounds in his head. Many witnesses, all of them members of the household testified in the case outside of this case, the police docket was short. Walter Herklee was fined $5 and costs for trespassing on the Southern railway. He was arrested for riding a freight train.

Coal Situation Is Becoming Increasingly Serious—Delays in Freight Felt In Various Ways—Chamber of Commerce Ready to Act.

The effect of the railway shipmen's strike and that of the bituminous coal operators is beginning to be felt here in acute form and local industrial leaders no longer discuss their anxiety over the immediate prospects of the strike, but the discomfort and annoyance which inevitably will be felt if both strikes continue as much as a week longer.

The chamber of commerce has already had the matter called to their attention and the executive committee by vote of the board of directors has been empowered to act for the association in any emergency which arises.

The coal situation is the one which gives rise to the most serious concern. Danville derives its coal principally from the non-union mines in West Virginia, and the strike of these mines has been unable to make their daily shipments for nearly a week. As there are no storage facilities it is not considered wise to mine coal simply to stockpile it. The strike of the mine, in other words the mines cannot function without their normal quota of coal cars.

The local city owned plants are getting uncomfortably near the strike mark, which could be bit for delivery. Little of this is coming through with the number of cars impaired by usage without inspection or repairs being "laid up" on side tracks waiting for the return of the strike of shopmen. Even though this were to come tomorrow it would be weeks before the shopmen can catch up with the work waiting to be done and deliveries of coal are just as uncertain as are those of other classes of freight. The electric and water plants are in fairly good condition so far as coal is concerned, both having about three weeks supply. The gas house which repairs the city's gas coal is facing a shortage. While it is true that oil is now used in the "water" system of gas manufacturing the fuel oil used in making the gas can be mined only when there are cars available and these are breaking down and the supply of tank cars diminishing.

The domestic coal situation is quite bad. The local coal yards have been unable to get the coal that they need and it is also true that domestic consumers this past summer hoping for a reduction in coal prices have not had their collars and coat houses filled with coal. It is probable that there will be difficulty in getting a normal supply of coal here before the time it is needed comes around and there is also the danger if not probability of price fluctuations, which will come with a heavy demand which cannot be met immediately.

Contractors are beginning to feel the strike here, there being delays in the delivery of certain building material. The bundling of Silverman's stores on the lower Main street is held up owing to the failure to arrive of steel beams. Various classes of freight are being held up and there is reported a chaotic condition in the railway yards ready of the fact that they are moving loaded freight in preference to empties thus disorganizing the constant and periodic well balanced stream of empty cars being well distributed. This is increasing the time it takes to get freight cars.

The local milk is relatively understood have sufficiency of coal to run the local plants for several weeks.

Will Place Blame For Deaths At Fire

Magnesium Known to Have Started Factory Blaze In New York—Most Stubborn Since Equitable Fire

NEW YORK, July 20.—After more than 48 hours of fighting, the fire department, under Deputy Chief McKenna had the flames at the Manufacturers' Transit company, on Jane street, cornered on the fourth floor late last night, and the end at hand. With two men dead, 18 in St. Vincent's hospital, and a first aid list of 200, Acting Chief Martin says the fire has only been equaled for stubbornness by the blaze which destroyed the old Equitable building.

The 21-inch brick wall on the Jane street side above the third story fell outward yesterday at 1:30 o'clock, burying the pavement with bricks. The wall cracked in the first explosion Tuesday, and had buckled under the tons of water thrown into the building, so its fall was anticipated and all apparatus except a water tower had been withdrawn.

The investigation started by Sergeant Gagan of the Bomb Squad, taken over by Attorney Stanton yesterday, established the moving of 28 tons of magnesium stored in the warehouse caused the fire, but has not yet fixed responsibility.

The magnesium has been there since March," said District Attorney Stanton. It was sent by Weisenthal & Co. of No. 55 Broadway who ordered the stuff moved Tuesday to Long Island City. It is probable the steel wheels of the hand trucks used in shifting the cases struck some of the magnesium and exploded it.

"I understood there was no permit for storing the stuff, but that has not been officially proved yet. If there was no permit, the responsibility for the death of the firemen killed in the first explosion would rest on the officers of the warehouse, unless it is found that Weisenthal & Co. are criminally responsible," Frederick R. Francis, the secretary of the warehouse company, told me he was notified by the Weisenthal people the cases contained a face powder for use after shaving.

The officers of the warehouse company, Edgar Bluxton, Thomas W. Burnside, and Frederick R. Francis, have been subpoenaed by the district attorney, with M. W. Hatch, as eye-witnesses of the start of the blaze. An official of the Guarin company said yesterday the entire staff of the warehouse, including the superintendent, was discharged seven months ago and replaced by a new staff. Assistant and District Attorneys P. S. Marra and Morgan Jones have been assigned to the case.

Cook Case Set For Next Monday

The trial of Patrolman R. T. Cook, charged with shooting P. A. Benton here recently, and which was scheduled for trial on Wednesday, was continued definitely today until next Monday morning. It had been hoped that the case could be reached this afternoon, but when it was seen late this morning that the Sneed case would consume all of the evening Judge Withers decided to prolong the court in order that the Cook case may be disposed of at the present term of court. Previously there was an informal agreement to postpone the case until September if it could not be reached by three o'clock this afternoon.

Will Slomp Change Mind

(By GEORGE H. MANNING)
(Washington Correspondent of The Danville Bee.)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Congressman C. B. Slomp, who is expected to be elected to the Ninth District Republican Convention at Norton yesterday, completely disregarded his announcement that he would not again be a candidate, and by acceptance renominated him for Congress. Efforts of the Danville Bee correspondent to get in touch with Mr. Slomp by long distance telephone today at Chicago, Colorado Springs, and San Francisco to advise him of his renomination and to learn if he would now feel compelled to accept, were fruitless.

At Chicago, former Congressman Wood, with whom Mr. Slomp had stopped on his way West, said he had left for California Wednesday night. At Colorado Springs, Colo., where Mr. Slomp intended to stop off a week, it was said at the home of Joseph L. et al. that he had not arrived. San Francisco reported that he was not there.

When Mr. Slomp left Washington for the West he was thoroughly discouraged not to again run for Congress and was making arrangements to take a complete rest and then as rapidly as possible take up private business pursuits.

Whether he will, in view of the action of the Norton convention yesterday in renominating him and then adjourning now and then to run, only Mr. Slomp knows. Opinion of his friends appears about evenly divided.

HORNBY GETS TWENTY SIX

ST. LOUIS, July 20.—Rogers Hornsby of the St. Louis Nationals knocked his twenty-sixth home run in the sixth inning of today's game at Boston. One man was on base and Hornsby was the victor. This surpassed the previous National League record, by two home runs.

Blindness As To Color Held Hereditary

BALTIMORE, Md., July 20.—If a man marries the daughter of a color-blind man at least half of his sons will be color-blind, though the daughters of such a union will be free from the affliction. If the wife is color-blind, all the sons will be afflicted. If both husband and wife are color-blind, both sons and daughters will be unable to distinguish between shades.

Such were the statements made yesterday by Dr. R. R. Hyde, professor of embryology at Johns Hopkins university, in a talk to members of the Engineers' club at their headquarters, Redwood and Light streets. His subject was "Recent Developments in Heredity."

Dr. Hyde rather discounted the old adage that "blood will tell," in hereditary traits and habits of individuals, whether of the human or animal variety. At the same time, he said it now is possible to trace with some degree of accuracy parentage through analysis of the blood of children, provided samples of the blood of the mother and supposed father are available.

Humanity, Dr. Hyde stated, is divided into four general groups as to blood. If there is doubt as to paternal responsibility the matter can be cleared up with reasonable certainty, he said.

The science of the embryology said Dr. Hyde also has made big strides in the matter of blood tests in criminal cases. It is now impossible for a murderer to escape successfully that bloodstains found on his clothing can't come from a cut finger or bleeding nose if such is not the case, he declared.

Numerous charts showing experiments with flies and other insects, cross-breeding were exhibited. Dr. Hyde said he had been able to evolve a number of entirely new species, including some with no wings, blind flies, with scarlet-colored eyes and a brood with white eyes.

Chromosomes, he said, color effects have more influence on heredity in animal and human life than any other force in nature, from the observations made to date, he declared.

Hooker and Moore to Aid Tubercular Work

RICHMOND, Va., July 20.—The Virginia Tuberculosis Association, fortunate in having the active cooperation of two congressmen, according to a statement given out today by Mrs. L. C. Flannigan, who is one of the field organizers for the Association.

Congressman Murray Hooker of the Fifth District is an active member of the Patrick county Tuberculosis Committee and Congressman R. Walton Moore, representative of the eighth district, has written, under date of July 12th, to the Virginia Tuberculosis Association expressing his interest in the new country organization plan which is now being carried on in the state preliminary to the annual Seal Sale which is conducted every fall for the support of tuberculosis work throughout the state.

Congressman Moore says "I do not know to what extent the disease spreads or is threatened in my county of Fairfax but I am writing to say that if I can be of any assistance in the way of influencing public sentiment to exert itself more actively in that county, or any of the counties of Northern Virginia, you can count on me."

$53,000 was raised last year by the Seal Sale, all of which was turned to the Tuberculosis Association, in which the money was collected for public health work except $14,000, which is being used for running expenses of the association. $39,000, the proceeds of the Seal Sale, is being used in promoting permanent clinics and public health nurses in 36 counties and eight cities of the state.

Thirty people in 20 counties are known to have been placed in Tuberculosis Sanatoria and a wide educational program has been promoted with a view to getting every person informed as to the prevention and cure of tuberculosis.

Youth Is Accused Of Killing Father

Boy, 18, at Cumberland, Denies, However, That He Committed Crime — Admits He Robbed Parent.

CUMBERLAND, July 20.—(Continued from page 1.)—Conceding, according to the authorities, that he robbed his father, George W. (Buck) Norris, of $550, Raymond Norris, 18 years old, who has been in jail here three weeks, stoutly denied that he murdered his father on May 18. A warrant on this charge was served on him at the jail last night. He was secured by State's Attorney Fuller Barnard, Jr., following representations of Charles L. Vilesch, of a Baltimore detective agency, who had been working on the case. All clues were run down without result until the arrest of the boy on the robbery charge. According to the authorities, the boy confessed to the robbery, saying his father, who was harsh with members of the family, had driven him from home. He eventually found work in Flintstone. On Saturday night, April 29, he returned home to spend Sunday. His father had worked hard all day, night, and day, and had retired early that night. Being sure his father was asleep, he said he crept into his room and took the money from a trunk in which he knew his father was in the habit of keeping money. Until $1,000 would be accumulated, when it would be placed in a Cumberland bank. The detectives think in view of the expressed belief of the boy that his father would have killed him had he discovered the loss of the money, his death occurred without his knowledge.

Mission Worker Rolled Her Eyes At Mel Trotter

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 20.—(Continued from page 1.)—Esther Nelson and Ellen Landgren, wife of the city rescue mission were "tucked" on Melvin E. Trotter, superintendent, in the opinion of Mrs. Trotter, according to Mrs. Phoebe Marshall Haines for 13 years a maid in the Trotter home. Haines, who took the witness stand late this afternoon in the separate maintenance action which Mrs. Trotter has brought, was for 13 years a maid in the evangelist's home. She was the first witness for the defense, and after having rested his case after reserving the right to introduce witnesses later. "Mrs. Trotter said Esther was too fresh, that she made eyes at Mr. Trotter and that when singing she would roll them around at him," the witness testified. "She said Ellen was too fresh, that she would go down to the mission just to be with Mr. Trotter. She was only 15 years old when she first entered the employ of the evangelist, said she left the Trotter home in 1910 after she 'had some words with Mrs. Trotter.' " "Did Mr. Trotter do anything that caused you to leave?" asked Attorney Starr of counsel for the defense. "No."

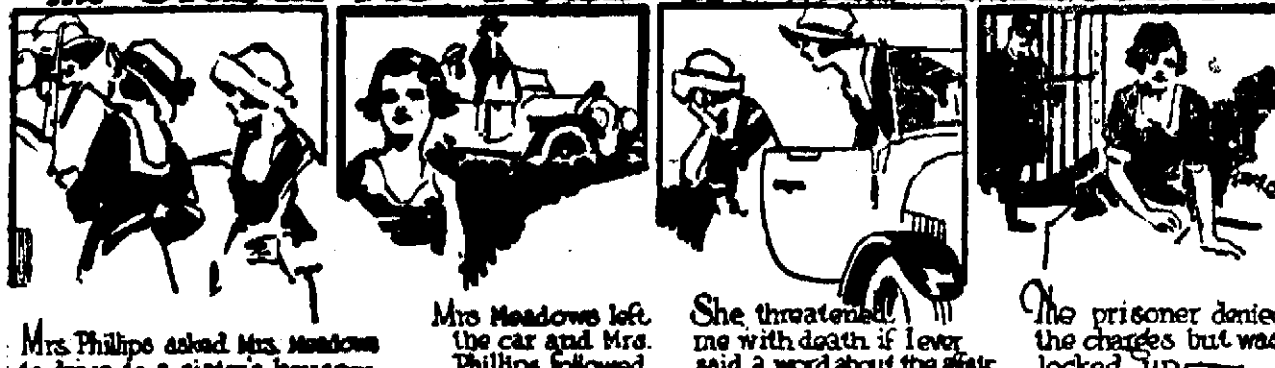

Mrs. Haines, however, worked at the Trotter home until 1913. She said that when singing she would never heard him use profane language toward her, speak harshly at her or see him strike her. It was about 10 years ago according to the former maid that Mrs. Trotter's conduct toward her husband began to change. It was about 1913 that Mrs. Trotter discontinued going bathing with Trotter and others because of a physical ailment, the maid swore. George E. Walker, former president of the mission board, was called to the stand during the afternoon, on cross-examination. He testified he pondered over Mrs. Trotter's mental attitude, until he learned her story of Trotter and Miss Florence Moody.

Testimony of Nell Buys, a mission worker was taken in chambers during the afternoon. It pertained to an alleged improper story she said Trotter told at a dinner party. Mrs. Lulu Winters, a niece of Mrs. Trotter, residing at Polo, Ill., testified this morning she had overheard a virtual admission by Trotter that he was the father of Miss Moody's baby. It was while the Trotters were visiting in the Winters' home in 1919, it was stated.

WILL UNWRITTEN LAW SAVE HER?

The CRIME AS TOLD IN THE CHARGES

Mrs. Meadows left the car and Mrs. Phillips asked Mrs. Meadows to drive to a sister's house—

She threatened me with death if I ever said a word about the affair—

The prisoner denied the charges but was locked up—

LOS ANGELES, July 21.—Will the "unwritten law" for years the plea of jealous husband who have killed, save from the gallows Mrs. Clara Phillips, victim of gossip?

This is the question on the lips of all Los Angeles as the 23-year-old wife and slayer awaits trial here for the killing of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, pretty young widow whom Mrs. Phillips accused of undue intimacy with her husband.

The husband, A. L. Phillips, an oil man, denies his wife's charges concerning Mrs. Meadows—but no witness denies that Mrs. Phillips believed them with all her heart, and that she hammered her victim to death believing her the violator of her home.

Unfounded Rumor Evidence has failed to show convincing ground for Mrs. Phillips' suspicion, yet somewhere a hint, a bit of covert gossip, or a self-developed pang in an emotionally high-kept heart, started the insane jealousy which ended in death for one and the arrest of the other.

"A victim of gossip," say all who know Mrs. Meadows. "She was innocent—it was the living tongue of scandal, the poisonous filth of slanderous minds that brought her to her death."

"A victim of gossip," say all who know Mrs. Meadows. "She was innocent—it was the living tongue of scandal, the poisonous filth of slanderous minds that brought her to her death."

Jealousy—a jealousy which the mere death of her supposed rival could not appease, a jealousy which demanded the feel of tortured flesh beneath repeated blows, which demanded degradation. For the wife did not purchase a revolver, but a hammer, according to the woman police.

Governor Trinkle Wires To Harding Regarding Mines

ROANOKE, Va., July 20.—Governor E. Lee Trinkle passed through the city yesterday afternoon at 12:15 on his way to Massena Springs, in Rockingham county to attend a gathering of Presbyterians now being held there. Governor Trinkle will be the principal speaker at the convention today.

While in the city the Governor was approached by a newspaper man and asked for the text of his reply to President Harding's request to the Governors of coal-producing States for their co-operation in the prosecution of the mines which were reopened yesterday. Governor Trinkle reported no trouble in this State and wired the President to that effect, stating that there is no coal strike in Virginia and that the Virginia mines are operating.

Monument To The Armistice

PARIS, July 20.—(United Press.)—Plans have been completed for the erection of a monument to commemorate the armistice of 1918. The monument will be erected in the forest of Compiègne, on Nov. 11 next, the fourth anniversary of the historic event. It will mark the spot where the German delegates admitted defeat and told Foch they had come to beg for peace.

The preparatory work is in charge of a committee of the League of Nations, with Premier Poincaré as honorary president. At present the spot where the armistice was signed is marked only by two inscriptions on pillars of wood nailed to trees, one indicating the place where Foch's train stopped, the other where the German plenipotentiaries stepped from their train.

It is proposed to erect in the center of the clearing a pedestal similar to that under which France's "Unknown Soldier" reposes under the Arc de Triomphe, the idea of the committee being that the spot is memorable chiefly because the German plenipotentiaries were buried. On the stone will be an inscription, of which the following is a translation: "HERE ON NOVEMBER 11, 1918, THE GERMAN EMPIRE TRIED TO ENSLAVE THE FREE PEOPLES. MARBLE PLACQUES WILL MARK THE SPOT WHERE MARSHAL FOCH AND THE GERMAN STOOD."

—Mrs. P. Sam Walton and little son, Samuel, have returned from a very pleasant visit to her sister, Mrs. J. H. Lewis, St. Albans, W. Va.

Takes 14 Years To Deliver a Post Card

CUMBERLAND, July 20.—Fourteen years ago L. Roy Kimes, drug gist, this city, was in Chicago on a brief business visit. He mailed a picture post card to John H. Surratt, Jr., then employed in the Kimes drug store as clerk. The post card, stamped plainly "Chicago, Ill., July 23, 12:30 p. m., 1920." This card was received yesterday in the Kimes post office box here. Surratt died a number of years ago. The postcard is clean and has the appearance of having been only recently mailed.

INDIGESTION RELIEVED WITH NEW CORDIAL

New Cordial Called "Anti-Ferment," Originated By a Druggist, Neutralizes Acid Condition of Stomach, Prevents Fermentation and Brings Instant Relief.

Indigestion and its attendant ills, such as dyspepsia, heart-burn, sour stomach, griping pains, dysentery, diarrhoea, colic, cholera morbus, chronic constipation, gas, etc., and even sick nervous headaches are now directly traceable to disorders in the digestive organs. The food sours before it is fully digested, thus putting into solution toxic poisons that are absorbed into the system, irritating the intestine and setting up inflammation. To avoid this, you simply have to prevent fermentation by using Anti-Ferment. Anti-Ferment neutralizes the acid condition of the stomach, cleanses and averages the bowels, soothes and heals the inflamed intestines and increases the flow of gastric juices, giving quick and certain relief. Get a bottle of Anti-Ferment from your druggist with a guarantee of satisfactory results or money returned. It will improve your appetite, give you restful sleep and make you feel better than you ever felt in your life—adv.

REPARATIONS ARE IN SUSPENSE UNTIL FRIDAY

PARIS, July 20.—(By The Associated Press).—The whole reparations question will probably be in suspense until Friday or Saturday, when the commission will begin its consideration of the report of the committee on guarantees, which has returned from Germany. Infinite developments are not looked for in the meantime.

The committee will do some intensive work tomorrow and Friday in an endeavor to have its findings ready by Saturday at the latest. In official circles the disposition is to proceed slowly and carefully with the question, and it was this idea that prompted Premier Poincaré to write a letter to the British ambassador at Paris, Lord Hardinge, pointing out the necessity of moving with the greatest care before the date of the forthcoming Franco-British meeting is fixed.

In reparations circles it is indicated that the question of instituting a most rigid control over German government finances will be one of the chief elements in the discussion of Germany's request for a moratorium. It is reliably reported that a difference of opinion exists in the commission on the question of extending control over Germany, even in the event that a moratorium is granted.

RATE HEARINGS ARE CONTINUED

ATLANTA, Ga., July 20.—Evidence regarding inter-territorial as well as intra-territorial freight rates will be permitted at the interstate commerce commission's rate hearing in Asheville October 2 to 21. It was announced here today by Commissioner Eastman who is conducting the hearings on proposed adjustments of class freight rates to the Southeast.

The proposed hearings in Chicago November 6 to 18 have been transferred to Cincinnati, Mr. Eastman announced.

Cross examination designed to show that through rates to the Carolina points would be higher than to Virginia points under the readjustment was continued until early tonight by A. J. Maxwell, North Carolina corporation commissioner.

Mr. Maxwell first tried to bring out J. W. Perrin, of the Atlantic Coast Line railway, that the North Carolina territory should be treated as a buffer between Eastern territory and the Southeast but Mr. Perrin contended that the proposed adjustment made this territory a buffer between Eastern trunk lines and Southeastern territory.

Asked whether the proposed rates between the Buffalo-Pittsburgh territory and North Carolina points was higher than under previous rates, Mr. Perrin replied it was necessary to make the proposed adjustment fit in to the adjustment of the rest of the South. He said that rates from central freight associations on territory were large factors and that the proposed rates were not feasible. Many technical details were gone into.

RESTRAINING ORDER

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 20.—E. L. Bora, general superintendent of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, said tonight a restraining order had been granted in the case of W. M. McClinton, in the town of Hunt, at Charleston, today issued temporary injunctions restraining rail picketers in the Southern district of West Virginia from stationing pickets on or near railroad property.

FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1922.
WHAT COUNTS MOST IN THE SENATE?

Westmoreland Davis' campaign charge that his opponent's record in the Senate is barren of useful accomplishments, has a hollow sound. It will not make a very deep impression on an electorate which has sent back to his seat in that august body Clyde A. Swanson, who seeks re-election and who has refused to abandon his duties as Senator during a critical period of national affairs to promote his own campaign.

If Candidate Davis would have us believe that by sending him to the Senate his imperious presence would appease the woe of the Old Dominion, it would require stronger proof than that which he has yet offered. As a matter of fact we are living in a time where statesmen of heroic size are few and far between, and there is less individual power in that body than there ever was. It is well recognized that the accomplishments by the Senate are those achieved in committee where problems are encountered, analyzed, discussed and solved and that the man who is a good "committee man" is of greater worth than the fiery orator who reverberates from the floor. It is in committee where the qualities of statesmanship show themselves and where the Senator can best serve his constituency. The mere fact that Senator Swanson does not fill pages of the Congressional Record is no measure for supineness. Senator Swanson has played his full share in the enactment of progressive and constructive legislation. This is never the work of one man but that of several collaborators in the committee chamber. It is to his credit rather than otherwise that he has not shied from the housework that he has done in the manner of demagogues.

If Candidate Davis decries lack of action on the part of the Senate, does he expect as a new member to accomplish at one fell stroke his reforms? If elected, it would be a matter of years before the new member would reach the position now held by Senator Swanson. His committee assignments would if the usual parliamentary rules were followed be comparatively restrictive and no matter what high ideals might clothe his purpose in aspiring it would be a long time before he could carry them out. Senator Swanson is already high in the councils, was a recognized counselor by Woodrow Wilson and today is one of the "wheel horses" of the Senate and counted among the number of Senators who seek no popular acclaim but who do their work quietly and courageously and none the less efficiently.

DRAKES FINANCH. July 21.—(Grapevine Wireless).—This is the little bird that came to grief in a strange manner. D. F. Cook, a well-known traveling salesman, residing in South Main street, grew up in this country and has lost his interest in gardening. In his back lot he has one of the finest gardens in town, including a number of healthy fruit trees. He has raised the trees from tender seedlings, and takes pride in the result. In the recent rain storms he noticed a small army of caterpillars on the limbs, and feeling an attack on the young fruit, he routed the pests with fly-swatters and other means. To prevent their return to the high and dry perches, he hit upon a unique scheme. Securing a quantity of fly-paper, he stuck it around the trees five or six feet from the ground, with the sticky side out. The result came fully up to expectations. No caterpillars were able to get by, and many were a heroic attempt to scale the sticky surface. There is no patent on the process and Mr. Cook recommends it to those who are bringing up young orchards.

This morning a sprightly young woodpecker, desiring practice on the tender bark of the young trees, landed just above the fly paper and pecked away with joy in his heart and pride in his work. But, alas, when his task was finished and he flew away, he left behind beautiful tall feathers behind, the fly-paper had got in its work, the little bird was greatly humiliated to lose its gay plumage. He will go thru the world as a creature to be ridiculed and scorned.

MORAL: Those who dig their plumage in the dust cannot hope to maintain the snow-white finish!

Tell it to the judge!

Knew His Neighbors.
An Irish farmer complained that a half a hog had been stolen in the night after his fall killing, and a neighbor interrupted.
"Pat, do you know who stole it?"
Pat mentioned the suspect, a neighbor.
"I might have done it," said the man who had interrupted.
"No," solemnly retorted Pat. "You would have taken the whole hog."

Chief Justice Taft, a great reader, was discussing books at a dinner party in Washington.
"This high-brow talk about 'style'," he said, "amuses me. 'Style' usually means affectation. The best writers have no style. It is as if they were talking to a stylist."
"Stylist is always looking for trouble. One of them entered a drug store the other day and asked for a man's comb."
"Do you want a narrow comb?" asked the attendant.
"The stylist gave a disgusted laugh. 'No,' he said, 'I want a comb for a stout man with rubber teeth.'"

Now they are going to tattoo society women. What? Another skin game?

The TATTOOED ARM

BEGIN HERE TODAY

What horrible and mysterious power was forcing the three Drake brothers, HOBART, the Wall Street broker, ROBERT, the scientist, and ANDREW, the recently returned from Australia, to place themselves in ridiculous situations? Scute, middle-aged and wealthy, the power had forced Hobart to do a square, Roger to burlesque a scientific address, and Andrew to sit on the floor and play with toys.

They were sane, and PATRICIA DRAKE, daughter of Hobart, secretly adored OWEN MILLS, detective sergeant, and his colleague.

SCOUTIE MCKEADY, an investigator, Miles is employed as a "houseman" and a "farther" on his first morning, a letter, which Miles learns did not go through the mail, and an open threat, Hobart into a passion.

Miles tells Scute to watch MISS VERUSHA DRAKE, spinster sister of the brothers, whom he discovered in a wildly excited state late at night before she was burning papers of some kind.

GO ON WITH STORY
"When—" Scute began.
"Wednesday night, here in the house. No one knows but me and I tell you about it later."

Miles continued his duties and no opportunity presented itself to speak to Scute until lunch. As he served the mid-day meal Miss Drake announced:

"Ora Hawks has returned from her trip to California."

For a moment there was silence while Andrew ate unconcernedly on Roger was almost furiously regarding his brother. Finally he asked, with an embarrassed cough:

"You will call, Andrew, no doubt?"
"Why should I?" The other looked unamused and then added with a short laugh, "I had almost forgotten her existence. Has she changed much?"

"Not in appearance; a little stouter, perhaps," Miss Drake answered hastily with a slight frown.
"She is coming for tea this afternoon, so you will be able to judge for yourself."

It was late afternoon when in answer to the summons of the doorbell he admitted the expected visitor. She was a stout, severely gowned woman of middle age with graying hair shined back tightly beneath a small, stiff hat and a pair of shell-rimmed glasses athwart the bridge of an inquiring nose.

"My dear Ora," it indeed a pleasure to welcome your return," Miss Drake greeted her with a cool kiss on the cheek and turned to Miles, "William, call Miss Patricia, please, and Mr. Roger. I think you will find Mr. Andrew in the garden."

Scute and Andrew were standing deep in consultation over by the summer-house and he had started toward them when he saw the visitor descending the steps of the side veranda. Her smile was somewhat grim as she advanced.

"How do you do, Andrew? Am I the last of your old friends?"
"Ora," Andrew Drake had wheeled with her first word and held out his hand. Then he drew it back with an apologetic shrug for its beguiling state. He was content in the balmy spring sunshine and both shirt-sleeves had been rolled to the elbow, but now he started hastily to pull them down. She noted the action and even from where he stood the detective could see the deep flush which mounted suddenly in her face, round face.

"Andrew," her nasal tones were oddly broken and confused. "You really recognized me, then? I am not so very much changed?"
"How can you ask? I should have known you anywhere in the world!" he returned with suspicious fervor. Then he added hurriedly: "I'll get cleaned up at once and come in for tea, and we can have a good talk."

"I will wait for you," she turned and moved back slowly toward the house while Andrew stood as though rooted to the spot gazing after her. When she had disappeared a single comment from the man reached Miles' ears.

"Damnation!"
"Look!" Scute seized Miles' arm and his low voice sank to a husky whisper. "There, over the hedge—Coming from the direction of the village. Who is it?"

Two indistinct shadows were moving along the walk and appeared to be engaged in an argument, for a man's rough tones mingled with a shrill, higher voice like that of an angry boy.

They crept step by step until they were within a few feet of the two.

"You'll lose out if you do. I tell you—the heavier masculine tones growled. 'What will you get out of it if you carry out your threat?'"

"A fair bit of satisfaction, old dear!" The mocking voice was that of a woman, not a boy, and the accent was unmistakable.

"I mean to get my bit out of whatever the game is, no fear!"

"AM I THE LAST OF YOUR OLD FRIENDS?"

"There's no game, but I promised you a settlement, didn't I, if you would only be a little patient? Let me take you back to your car, like a sensible girl and I'll see you in town before the end of next week."

"Ton's Andrew Drake, himself!" Scute breathed, but the woman was speaking once more.

"No game?" Scute laughed. "I don't care tuppenny wit it is, but I'm going to have my rights—Ow far back did we leave the 'bloomin' car?"

They turned and moved back along the pathway in the direction from which they had come. Scute straightened with a grunt.

"Two women, eh? Our friend Andrew had an unlucky day. I think I can guess who this one was, just now: the lady you met yesterday."

"Yes," Miles replied. "It was Mazie."

CHAPTER IX
It was Hobart Drake's unbroken custom of years to return home immediately after the market closed at noon on Saturdays, but on the day following that of the arrival of the new gardener, lunch-time came and passed and he did not appear nor did any word come from him.

"There is a station taxi coming down the road and—yes, Hobart is here," exclaimed Miss Drake when tea was served.

When Miles reached the library door once more the measured tones of Hobart Drake came distinctly to his ears.

"—Sorry, but there were many details to attend to in settling up my affairs."

"Settling up?" It was Andrew, and the devil-may-care note had vanished from his voice.

"I am no longer a member of the Stock Exchange," announced Hobart Drake quietly.

"Of all the good feels!" Andrew exploded. "First Roger and then you, both of you lying down and taking it! By God, I thought there was more fighting blood in the family than that! You're afraid!"

It was still comparatively early when Miles was free to join Scute, whose only aim was to get to his room. Scute remarked at last, "That is Andrew's attitude in the matter. He's not thinking of the fresh gossip. It may be that he has made a good bit of money through Hobart's inside tips in the market and doesn't want to lose the graft."

What was that?"
"I didn't see anything."

"I thought a light winked twice down there by the gate."

They crept around the house and were skirting the hedge when a sudden movement behind a tree brought them to a halt.

"—I ain't gwine to fish no gun." A tremendous voice spoke out of the darkness.

"Rip!" Miles exclaimed. "You're some watchman!"

"Lordy!" Rip advanced and added sheepishly: "I thought it was dem two again!"

"What two?" demanded Scute.

"Dunno," Rip mumbled. "Two fellows come through here de yother night—an I ords dem away an says de next time dey come back I'm gwine to shoot."

"What did they look like?"

But Rip could give no further information and the two detectives withdrew.

Miles looked up the house and retired. The family breakfasted late on Sunday and Carter was well enough to serve them, but he came out to the detective who was helping in the pantry and asked:

"William, will you go up to Miss Patricia's door and tell her the folks are waiting for her?"

Miles hurriedly ascended and knocked upon Patricia's door but no reply came to him and after repeating the summons again and again he ventured to turn the knob. The door swung inward, revealing an empty room, the bed smooth and untouched, and lying in a heap across a chair where it had been carelessly flung, was the gown which Patricia had worn the night before. She was gone!

CHAPTER X
MILES proceeded straight to the dining room; he must see for himself what reason there was for the shock the news would bring to the family.

"Miss Patricia's not there, ma'am," the detective said quietly.

"Not—not there?" The woman's lips barely formed the words and a muttered oath came from Andrew, but Roger only stared while the faint color ebbed from his thin face, leaving it waxen.

"Patricia! My God, not that! Not that last blow!" Hobart started up as Miss Drake sank back and Andrew cried out furiously:

"You see what you've done? You brought it on yourself!"

"Andrew!" The gentle Roger's tone was suddenly stern. "You need not add your recriminations to the situation. Patricia is Hobart's daughter, not yours!"

"I must know! I must see for myself!" Miss Drake rose, swaying slightly, and left the room.

"It's that young rascal Dick Kemp!" Hobart exclaimed. "I told Verusha it was a mistake to keep too tight a rein on the girl at this time, but she overruled me. I'll get that father of hers on the phone."

"Wait until Jerusha returns," interrupted Roger. "The child may have left a note that will explain her absence. You may go, William."

The detective had been ostensibly busy himself at the serving table in the corner but now he was compelled to retire to the pantry where Carter confronted him.

"I heard," he exclaimed. "You're sure she's gone, William?"

"Didn't I say the bed hadn't been slept in?" Miles returned. "Where are you going?"

"To tell Hitty," Carter called back over his shoulder.

With surprising agility considering his ailment, he darted through the farther door.

Hobart Drake was seated at his desk sealing an envelope as Miles entered in response to his ring.

SCIENCE PROBES MYSTERY OF OKLAHOMA "HAUNTED HOUSE"

HAUNTED? THE J. L. WAGONER HOME AT NORMAN, OKLA., WHERE 13 MYSTERIOUS FIRES BROKE OUT IN 48 HOURS

POMAN, Okla., July 21.—Can science solve the mystery of the new Antagonist—a ghostless haunted house—a spooky "fire home?"

Where sheets burst into flames as one gets into bed—

And wash rags start burning when raised to the face?

That's what J. L. Wagoner, farmer here, says happened in his house. And members of his family bear out his story.

Farmers around Norman attribute these ghostly happenings to the supernatural. But authorities are seeking a scientific explanation—thus far without success.

In two days there were 12 fires—all of mysterious origin.

The first occurred when Wagoner's wife opened a clothes closet. A flash of flame shot into her face.

Several hours later the roof of the house started burning.

The farmer picked up a wash cloth to wash his face. But the cloth began to burn.

That night, the linen on his bed turned into a sheet of flame. The family ran from the house.

The next day they returned. The mysterious flames broke out anew.

Sheriff W. H. Newblock threw a guard around the place. Every person who entered or left the house was searched.

But the mystery wasn't solved.

A chemist from the University of Oklahoma took a hand. He is endeavoring to find a liquid solution that is combustible when it dries.

He hasn't found it yet.

So far, Wagoner still is haunted by fear that the mysterious fires may start again at any time.

People hereabouts are recalling the famous haunted house at Antagonish, Nova Scotia, where similar phenomena were reported.

Today's Fashion Hints

ODD POCKETS ARE FEATURE OF ADVANCE FALL GOWNS

POCKETS may be useful, but they must be ornamental. So if you are buying an advance model of the new snuggest skirts for autumn look well to the pockets.

Embroidered borders of striking colors are the newest things about fall skirts. These borders, indeed, were shown on many of the autumn's summer suits of white.

Black brown and navy blue and an are the colors shown on the grounds for the vivid embroidered or woven bands, often 15 inches deep.

The pockets are likely to be strange and wonderful things of odd shapes. Some are like a large, shallow, about the same width as a skirt's longer, and are shown in both plain and pleated models.

COTTON STATES TENNIS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 20.—Two Atlantans, Harry Hallman and Jack Caldwell, will meet in the finals of the singles in the Cotton States tennis tournament at the Country Club tomorrow.

These two victors came through with brilliant victories in the semi-finals, played at the local club today. Saturday afternoon Caldwell and Grant Atkinson will meet Brookes and Lane, Birmingham players, in the double finale.

Here is a swimming suit to delight the swimmer who wants a decorative costume as well as a practical one. The last possible use has been made of some black and white striped wool.

The bathing cap has a good sized rose of rubber of a type hardy enough to weather any storm.

can afford to rent a house as a permanent proposition. He can afford to buy, but he can't have money by buying, no matter what sum he may be paying in rent. If he stays in the house he will pay for it and not own it. If he buys and continues his payments he can and will pay for it and it will be his property. Payments made in that way take the place of regular savings made at the bank. He can buy a house on a land contract, make his payments as rent, add to them if he has the funds available, and become a property owner. In Chicago the high rental figures that prevail have forced home buying to such a degree that many people who have the funds available, but who have learned they cannot afford to buy but they cannot afford to rent.

Every intelligent renter knows he pays the taxes. Rent goes up as taxes are advanced. The landlord passes the burden to the renter for taxes and improvements. If he owns the place he will pay the taxes and improvements, but with a different result. These payments will quicken his interest in local affairs, in local government. He will want better government. That will make him a better citizen, no matter how many excellent qualities he may have as a tenant. Quickening rent. Buy a home. Make the payment you are able to make keep the payments up on the contract. The road to home ownership has been travelled by many. More than half the homes in Columbus were paid for that way. Conditions that exist today ought to spur people into purchasing homes. There are plenty of places that may be bought, and plenty of people who are able to buy and pay the contract.

ROSIES.

SEAPLANE SERVICE FOR OCEAN MAIL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—Second Assistant Postmaster General Henderson announced today that seaplane service for ocean mail would be established soon at New Orleans, the ship flying 50 miles down the river to put late mail on outgoing steamers and to take incoming mail to the city. Mail thus brought will beat the steamers as far as bulk mail.

FRENCH STAND ON REPARATIONS IS NOT KNOWN

PARIS, July 20.—(By The Associated Press)—With definite developments in the reparations situation not expected until the middle of next week because of delay in the presentation of the report of the committee on guarantees, possible solutions of the problem are being discussed in reparations commission and official circles. In French quarters, it is strongly indicated that France will not consent to a moratorium unless a most rigid control of German finances is instituted and measures are adopted which would insure payment in cash at the end of the breathing space.

There is not the slightest indication how the French delegates on the commission will act but it has come to the surface that there is much speculation on just what attitude France will eventually take on the question of a moratorium.

In British and Italian circles, the moratorium has gained favor more and more. Belgium, it is said, will consent to a respite if it is only accompanied by the most rigid guarantees on future payments. The impression is constantly gaining ground that a settlement of the reparations question in an all-inclusive manner must be made sooner or later by the allies.

The question of allied debts and reduction of the total indemnity with payments over a certain number of years remains a puzzle to observers, since French opinion favors a postponement of a general settlement to a much later date.

BABY IN BAD TEMPER HALTS SCREENING OF PICTURE

Infant in "Bought and Paid For" Engages Sole Attention of Producing Staff

The baby used in "Bought and Paid For," William de Mille's latest Paramount production, showing at the Broadway theatre next Monday, developed a slice of temperamental one day during the filming of the picture and for a while everyone, including players, directors, property man, and everybody on the staff, engaged themselves in getting the infant to the point of mind to work properly. Finally it began to smile and all manifested relief.

Camera," called Mr. de Mille, his eyes intent on the child, which acted like an owl time trouper. All of a sudden the youngster glanced at Jack Holt, who with Agnes Ayres plays one of the two leading roles, and at Walter Hiers, who supplies the comedy element. They were not even moving. So interested in seeing that the baby acted, they forgot to act themselves. Fortunately, it was only a rehearsal—no film had been shot.

Next time as the camera was turned, everybody acted, including the baby, and the scene was filmed without difficulty.

POLICY OF GENERAL AMNESTY FIRMLY OPPOSED BY HARDING

WASHINGTON, July 20.—President Harding was quoted today by members of a delegation which presented to him a petition for the release of all persons still imprisoned for violation of war laws, as having said during a 40-minute interview that he still adhered to his opposition to a policy of general amnesty.

The president is said to have told the delegation that each case would be considered separately. All cases he is understood to have said, would be reviewed within the next 60 days. Nearly 160 persons are still in prison for war time law violations. In explaining his opposition to general amnesty the president is said to have taken the position that all cases were not on an equal footing, as some of the persons convicted were charged with advocacy of violence. The executive was quoted as having remarked that he was deeply sympathetic with those still serving sentences and their families, but could not permit his heart to dictate a policy that would result in liberation of all prisoners at one time.

While the delegation waited on the president, a number of women picketed the west end of the White House grounds with banners calling on the president to take action.

Later in the day, the White House issued the following statement on the visit of the delegation seeking amnesty:

"Replying to a delegation seeking general amnesty for all political prisoners the president stated that he could not bring himself to grant general amnesty until he knew that all prisoners held under war act had only committed strictly war offenses, that he was giving consideration to these cases that he had instructed the department of justice to expedite reports in all these cases, but that he would never as long as he was president pardon any criminal who was guilty of preaching the destruction of the government by force."

FRENCH COMPARE ARMAMENT COSTS

PARIS, July 20.—France "in spite of the heavy burden which the care of insuring her safety and of fulfilling her international obligations has imposed," is leading the world in the proportionate reduction of military expenditures, according to an official memorandum respecting the military budgets of 11 leading countries, compiled by the French Government and submitted to The Associated Press.

Italy, with an increase of 256 per cent in her budget over the year 1913-14, stands far ahead on the list. The memorandum points out that while France with an increase of 102 per cent is at the bottom of the list, the compilation is not a range in the following order:

Japan, 290 per cent; Spain, 275 per cent; Norway, 126 per cent; Great Britain, 121 per cent; United States, 114 per cent; Sweden, 155 per cent; Holland, 133 per cent; Denmark, 125 per cent and Switzerland, 74 per cent.

Elaborating upon the French reduction, the memorandum adds that in 1913 the military branch absorbed fully one-third of the general budget of 1,557,574,737 francs from a total of 5,066,000,000. In 1922, with the military expenditures increased by various international obligations such as the maintenance of troops on the Rhine and elsewhere the defence arm required but one-fifth of the general appropriations, or 1,056,000,000 francs from a total of approximately 5,000,000,000 for the entire government.

THREE MOTORISTS KILLED AS CAR GOES OVER BRIDGE

MONTREAL, July 20.—Three persons were killed outright, two were fatally injured and two others seriously hurt today when an automobile containing a party of New York tourists plunged over a bridge spanning the Riv. Highway at St. Philippe de la Prairie near Montreal.

The driver, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bernstein and Mrs. J. Milhouse. Fatally injured: Mr. and Mrs. Leo Gutman, of No. 135 Central Park West, New York city.

Less serious injuries were sustained by Mrs. S. Gutman, mother-in-law of Leo Gutman, and John Fleisch, the Gutman's chauffeur. All were taken to the General Hospital at Montreal. Gutman was driving the car when, from causes which coroner McMahon will seek to determine at an inquest tomorrow, it apparently got out of his control and swerved sharply into the bridge rail, throwing car and occupants to the ground.

Mrs. Bernstein was hurled 20 feet when the car overturned and landed, face upward, in a creek. She was rescued from drowning by W. G. Naylor, New York, who drove up with friends immediately after the crash.

Members of the ill-fated party were on the last lap of a sightseeing trip to Montreal, after having spent last night at Lake Placid, N. Y.

ENTER The FLAPPER

by Zoe Beckley

"Some Button-Polisher, that girl," murmured Peggy wickedly.

Peggy had slipped away from the house where she was supposed to be studying for an examination in geometry and now this high school girl sat in a Broadway cabaret. With jealous eyes, she watched her cousin dance with Peggy's rival.

The flapper toyed with a glass filled from a pocket-flask. A reckless, alien stirred in her restlessness.

Then followed a swirl of events not uncommon in the world of the flapper, cat-eaters and flappers, who have amused an older generation by the energy and boldness of their revolt against conventions.

The story is told by Zoe Beckley in a brilliant novel of youth and modern society.

Don't miss this great revelation of modern American youth, "ENTER THE FLAPPER."

New Party to Rule If Mexican Policy Goes On, Says Ladd

Urging Recognition, He Sees "Imperialism" and
"Unholy Alliance With Oil Interests."

WASHINGTON, July 20.—"Secretary of State Hughes," said Senator Ladd, (Republican, North Dakota, in urging this afternoon the immediate recognition of the Obregon government, "has been as secretive in the Mexican negotiations as a European diplomat of the old school. His demands conditional to recognition are an offensive and unwarranted invasion of the sovereign rights of Mexico."

"I assert that there is a close understanding between American oil companies in Mexico and the Department of State to disobey the laws of Mexico in order that Mexico may be forced to revoke domestic legislation and to sign a treaty distasteful to its legally elected officials. It is evident that we are using recognition as a bait with which to fish for commercial advantages in the troubled waters of Central America. It seems evident that the present administration cannot be expected, if we are to judge by its policies thus far outlined, to afford any immediate change toward Mexican recognition. The Central American and West Indian countries seem to be wholly imperialistic.

"The relief sought by them can come, in my opinion, only when a really progressive party is elected to power in this country by the common people, as it certainly will be at an early date if the policies now in vogue are continued.

"It is to our advantage immediately to establish harmonious relations with Mexico. Our people demand such recognition. And overwhelming majority of both houses of Congress favor it.

"When I review our recent domineering policy towards Mayti, San Domingo, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Panama, Cuba and Mexico, I seem to me we have abandoned the traditional policies of Washington, Jefferson, Monroe and Lincoln. We seem to have entered upon a course of aggression and imperialism.

"And wholly alien to our certain powerful financial interests and the state department has already reduced more than one heretofore independent republic to the status of a Wall street protectorate.

"We cannot afford to have Latin America and the world believe that there is such an alliance between our department of state and certain sinister oil interests which not only have exploited the natural resources of Mexico but also have interfered in her governmental affairs. A group of American financiers have twice within a year attempted to overthrow the Obregon government, and their efforts have not been interfered with by those of our officials who are charged with the duty of preserving American neutrality.

"Recent outbreaks of banditry in the Tampico country had every appearance of being staged at the moment best calculated to embarrass the Mexican government in its efforts to fund the Mexican debt, and it was a curious coincidence that these well press agents kidnappings all took place in the Tampico district where the American oil companies are located, and it is a matter of official record that former bandit chiefs have been on their payrolls.

"I doubt whether there are more crimes committed in Mexico than in the United States. Certainly a country which permits the barbarous lynchings that recently disgraced the United States is in no position to criticize Mexico. I am not imputing out national courage, but the United States government would not negotiate with any power with equal strength in the building, badgering manner that habitually characterizes our 'diplomatic' communications to Mexico."

OIL BOOM DAYS IN MEXICO ARE OVER, PRODUCERS SAY

TAMPICO, Mexico, July 20.—Oil boom days in Mexico are over, in the opinion of American oil men here, as a result of finding emulsion and water in the Toteo-Cerro Azul pool.

Oil industry in Mexico has entered the period of stabilization, American oil men say.

The time has come when the same group of capitalists controlling several subsidiary concerns will quit duplicating plants and develop on a co-operative plan. A resident manager of one of the largest organizations told me.

"The prospective oil production in Mexico is absolutely unknown, but there is every indication from a geological point of view that it will still maintain its lead as one of the greatest oil producing countries of the world.

"Future production of oil in Mexico will not in all probability be of a spectacular kind."

Oil men here pointed out, however, that there is no reason why the development in the mid-continent field in the United States, because practically the same organizations are working both fields.

Tampico, as a result of the new developments in this field, has reached the end of its "boom" growth in the opinion of the Americans here.

From this time on, it is expected that this city and district will develop along more conservative lines, with agriculture being an important factor.

This development along agricultural lines will also affect the Americans in this district, because of the fact that probably as high as 30 per cent. of the land holders between this city and Monterey along the railroad lines are Americans.

The finding of emulsion and water in the Toteo-Cerro Azul pool will probably mean a decrease of approximately 10,000,000 barrels in the monthly production of light crude beginning about September 1, oil men estimate. It also means, it is said, a decrease of approximately 50 per cent. in the oil taxes receipts by the Mexican government.

ATHLETES IN THE SENATE

By KENNETH W. CLARK

WASHINGTON, July 20.—"Sportively speaking," the Senate of these United States knows no political lines.

While acrimonious charges, countercharges and threats fly furiously across the chamber during discussions of partisan measures, the Senate "on the field" is all harmony and brotherly love.

Take for instance "Joe" Robinson, of Arkansas. On the floor, "Joe" backs, as sport writers might say, "a can verbal uppercut, and a slashing, oratorical right.

On the golf course, he totally different. In fact, he keenly enjoys an early morning game with "Charlie" Townsend, Republican, Michigan, whom, at times, he bitterly opposes on the floor.

Golf is the game which makes all centers equal—and what's more—kindly and generous to political foes. It's only on the links!

The Senate athletically, is "pre-eminently golf," though baseball, fishing and swimming claim a share of senatorial adherents. Sport never interferes with the Senate work.

Every morning, while Capitol Hill is bathed in scarlet streamers of a red sun, McKinley, Illinois, Jones, Washington, Capper, Kansas, Celler, Nebraska, and Hitchcock, Nebraska, are "being off" at one of the numerous Washington links. McKinley and Jones invariably start at six o'clock on the public course in Potomac park. Others prefer the greens at the country clubs.

They will tell you—these senators—play every morning—that they don't try to make scores—"just playing a 'dub' game, to get in trim for Senate sessions."

Nevertheless, a few shots in the air, and in recent play with newspapermen, the senatorial team won every match, the scores not even troubling the scoring columns.

Then there is Willis, of Ohio, the "Bar" Bush of Capitol Hill. Any morning you can see him slugging out hits at the expense of some little page hunter, or covering the Keystone back with the expertise of an Eddie Collins. The pages tell you Fredling, Kansas, also, a baseball addict, and his equipped Senate pages with a complete baseball outfit.

At seven o'clock, Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, is playing tennis on the White House courts. He is the Senate devotee of the game.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, is the aquatic star of the upper chamber. Practically every afternoon he practices in the small swimming pool in the Senate office building.

There is nothing which Senator McCumber, Dakota, likes quite so well as a quiet week-end fishing trip away from the worries of the tariff and the soldier bonus. Sometimes, on these trips, he is accompanied by Senator Berry, Michigan, also an ardent angler.

Motoring, horseback riding and walking claim a good number. It used to be Senator Lodge's boast that he never missed, rain or shine, walking from his home to the Capitol. Borah, Idaho, is an enthusiastic horseman.

Whenever there is a dull afternoon in the Senate, Senator Harrison, Mississippi, and Spencer, Missouri, who staged many a merry word-battle when the Nat Goldstein case was under discussion, slip away to the ball park to watch Walter Johnson and the Washington team. Harrison seldom misses a home game.

Rocks Are Hurling At Shifting Engine

NEW BERN, July 20.—The only trouble known to have occurred here since the strike began was reported today by J. K. Laughinghouse, shifting engine, who said his locomotive was rocked a mile yards last night. A brickbat was thrown through the cab and windows in a coach being moved at the time were broken. A statement from Capt. J. M. Shay, of the Reaumur division of the Norfolk Southern, is to the effect that strikers are not charged with this incident. He declared that there has been no trouble whatever with the 140 shophmen who are out.

"However," Mr. Shay says, "we have not attempted to bring in any outside help, what repair work we are able to have is done by the general superintendent and a few negro helpers."

INSISTS LENINE IS DEAD

STOCKHOLM, July 20.—Notwithstanding denial issued by the soviet embassy at Riga yesterday of the statement made by the Riga correspondent of the Svenska Dagbladet that he had been reliably informed Premier Lenin, of soviet Russia, had been poisoned the correspondent today telegraphed his newspaper here from Riga he had obtained confirmation of his statement. Cyanide potassium was used, the correspondent stated.
